A single global accounting language surely must be the aim of the accounting profession in its bid to support the global economy and markets. However, there are a number of practical and political issues which may hinder this process. This report addresses one of these issues - that of translation. This report takes a European perspective: to identify specific issues which arise in the translation of accounting terminology; to explore the implications of these issues; and to make recommendations for stakeholders in IFRS adoption and translation. The authors find that although translation is possible, direct equivalence cannot be achieved. Translation problems can arise because of differences in accounting systems and language structures. Problems are likely to differ between different language families. A major problem is that meanings between different languages do not exactly overlap. These findings give rise to six policy implications for consideration by the profession.
